Cost of Attendance for 900-Hour Massage Certification Program

For maximum financial assistance, the US Government calculates the Cost of Attendance (COA) based on the average expenses, students incur while attending our 900-Hour Massage Certification Program. This average of costs is based on a broad spectrum of varying student backgrounds, including:

- Short and long-distance commutes
- Housing costs
- Other cost of living
- Personal expenses

Plus, all cost factors of

- Program tuition
- Program fees
- Required text books
- Required supplies
- Cost for room and board
- Transportation costs

All of these costs are assessed from active student surveys to establish the average overall Cost of Attendance (COA) when attending school to take the program. All of these costs and expenses are included with below award year budget.

Therefore, please note, that below amounts do NOT reflect the costs of the 900-Hour Certification Program, but rather disclose what the overall expenses of attending school are to be assessed at.

The Department of Education considers education a responsibility of each family and expects that students shall be financially supported by their family in the pursuit of career education. Therefore, it assesses an Expected Family Contribution (EFC) that is based on various factors including income, and differs based on specific circumstances.

While each student's personal COA differs, such applicable EFC (Expected Family Contribution) is subtracted from the COA as Federal Financial Aid is calculated for a given student.

Below, please find a table showing the Cost of Attendance (COA) Budget for the current Award Year:
